

Stratton Cites Party Record

Harry Hess, Lee county courthouse custodian, is a man who takes great interest and pride in his work. Consequently, an event which may well mark the end of an era came about Friday with no fanfare and little notice.

For many, many years cuspidors were integrally associated with saloons and courthouses. The saloons have long since become cocktail lounges, for the most part, where ash trays are provided for smokers and expectorating is frowned upon. The courthouse remained Cuspidor's Last Stand.

True, these are not exceptional spittoons as spittoons go. They were made of hard rubber painted grey, and probably, according to County Clerk Sterling Shrock, were not more than 15 years old.

Shrock, a 25-year veteran of the courthouse, recalls a preponderance of big, shiny, brass cuspidors situated about the halls and offices when he took office, and also several utilitarian cast iron ones. To the best of his knowledge, they were either junked or sold for scrap. Shrock thought that they probably came with the cornerstone in 1901.

A few years ago, he recalled, there were a couple of the brass variety in the vault on the first floor, but they, too, seem to have disappeared.

The 25 cuspidors have been replaced with 12 of the more modern "butt buckets" found in hotel lobbies, office buildings and theaters. Hess says they are called sand urns. This may be because they are shaped generally like urns and contain sand.

They are about knee high, done in a sort of shiny brown, with sparkling chrome rings at top and bottom. A removable section at the top contains clean-looking white sand, and gives the illusion that the whole thing is full of sand. Underneath this section the urn is hollow, and reserve sand is kept here. So actually, the whole thing is full of sand.

Hess, noted for the spit-and-polish cleanliness of his courthouse, cleaned the old spittoons regularly, but this, at best, is a messy job. He is quick to point out the ease with which the sand urns can be cleaned. Cigarette butts, gum wrappers, apple cores and other rubbish are merely fished out with a sieve, allowing the sand to run back into its appointed place.

With Harry Hess at the helm, the interior of the courthouse looks like the interior of no other rural courthouse extant. The floors are waxed and polished regularly. The brass knobs at the tops of staircases glisten. The windows shine. The offices are clean.

Actually, the sand urns are more germane to the Lee County courthouse than the old spittoons were. Spittoons seem to belong to the usual, dingy, poorly-lit courthouse, but not here. Perhaps the cuspidors were just a holdover from a past age, and the era really ended 12 years ago when Harry Hess became custodian.

CITY EDITOR'S NOTE — By way of introduction, E.A.H. is Edward A. Hutchins, late of the Kansas City Star, and now a member of the Evening Telegraph staff. He covers the police and courthouse beat. As a minor expert on courthouse cleanliness, Mr. Hutchins on his first round of his "beat" exclaimed that the Lee county courthouse was the cleanest he had ever seen. The removal of the spittoons gave him a chance to write about it and also to call some attention to Harry Hess who is responsible for the spic and span appearance of the Lee County Courthouse.

Arrest 250 in Attempt to Prevent General Strike

State of Siege Declared By President of Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile.—At least 250 persons were under arrest today as the government pushed a stiff campaign to avert a threatened nationwide work stoppage.

A government spokesman charged there were signs of "international communism" that sought to incite the nation.

Those arrested included union leaders, opposition politicians, newspapermen and some former associates of President Carlos Ibanez. The arrests were made in many cities over the country. The government asserted that many of those taken into custody were Communist or pro-Communist.

Action was taken under a state of siege decree Thursday night by Ibanez.

Call Strike

Chile's big Central Labor Union (CUT) called a nationwide strike for Monday in opposition to a government proposal to freeze wages and pensions in an effort to curtail inflation. The government said such a plan was necessary to save the nation's economy but union leaders and opposition political groups said it would cause hunger throughout the country.

Baudillo Casanova, secretary general of the CUT, declared Friday night the strike would begin as scheduled and would continue indefinitely.

Casanova issued his statement from a secret hideout. The president of the union, Clotario Best, and other union officials were among those arrested.

Issues Charge

Interior Minister Benjamin Videla said in a radio broadcast to the nation that the general strike call constituted "an attempt against public order and the nation's security." He charged there were signs of "international communism" in the CUT that sought to incite the nation.

Ibanez directed congress to reconvene Jan. 11 when he will seek final approval of his freeze program.

Persons taken into custody by flying squads of police included Jorge Prat, secretary of the treasury in 1954, who is publisher of a newspaper occasionally critical of the government. Eight persons, including several union leaders, were arrested at Valparaiso and six union officials were arrested at Antofagasta.

Political Motive?

Mario Ciudad, secretary general of the presidency, said the newspapermen picked up by police were not arrested for their journalistic activities but because of their "political complexion."

Four regiments of army troops and 500 navy men were brought to Santiago from the provinces, increasing the capital's military strength to 30,000. Four tanks stood guard at the government palace. Santiago's streets were patrolled by police squads throughout the night.

Strikes and soaring inflation have plagued Chile for 15 years and Ibanez has been confronted with frequent demands for wage increases.

The state of siege—a modified form of martial law—puts a ban on public meetings and censorship on newspapers and radio stations and permits search of homes and arrests without warrants.

Leaves Home In the Night; Seek Friend

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—(AP)—The 20-year-old niece of New York state's conservation commissioner was reported missing from her home today, only hours before her scheduled wedding.

She is Judy Wehle, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Wehle. Her uncle is Louis A. Wehle, wealthy Rochester brewery executive and state conservation commissioner in Gov. Averell Harriman's Democratic administration.

Police said they were looking for a young man Miss Wehle knew.

They said the girl apparently left her home in suburban Penfield some time before 3:45 a.m. today, and may have been dressed only in a negligee with a jacket or housecoat thrown over it.

They said Miss Wehle was believed to have left the house through a side door. A cellar window was reported broken.

The girl's sister, Mrs. Beth O'Connor, was quoted by a newspaperman who talked with her as saying she had received a telephone call from Judy about 6 a.m. She said it did not sound like the girl was being held against her will.

Miss Wehle's fiancé is John Owens of Rochester, a former Colgate University football player who is now an Air Force lieutenant.

The wedding was scheduled for 11 a.m. in St. Joseph's Catholic church in Penfield, Mrs. O'Connor, who was scheduled to be matron of honor at the wedding, spent the night at the Wehle home.

The Awakening

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (P)—Everhear of a disgruntled marriage license customer returning the unused license?

Agnes Schraips, clerk of District Court, said a 29-year-old Great Falls man dropped the license on the counter, saying something about needing it like he would need a hole in his head. He offered no other explanation.

The man and his 23-year-old prospective bride purchased the license last week.

President to End Vacation

Real Test of Heart To Begin at Capital

KEY WEST, Fla.—(P)—President Eisenhower today spends his last full day in the Florida sunshine.

The president, who came to Key West Dec. 28 seeking fuller recovery from his September heart attack, is scheduled to start back to Washington by plane Sunday afternoon.

He traveled to Florida to help condition himself for resumption of a full work load next week. His personal physician, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, relayed word to newsmen Friday that the visit here has done Eisenhower "a world of good."

Shouts at Umpire

And to the newsmen covering his activities he looked good a bit later when he turned up at the ball park and laughingly shouted "robber" at the umpire. That came during a softball game the newsmen were playing against Secret Service agents who guard the President.

Eisenhower, basking in a hot sun, watched about half of the five-inning game from the bleachers along the third base line.

A short time before, he and Secretary of Agriculture Benson had just about completed work on the special 5,000-word farm message the President will send to Congress Monday.

The message will follow up his call for "immediate and drastic attention" to the problems of declining farm income and what to do about huge crop surpluses.

Real Test of Heart

It also will mark the start of a time of real testing whether Eisenhower's heart is up to the all-out grind of the presidency.

His physicians said in December it would be mid-February before they could tell how the heart was standing up under a full work load. If he hasn't done so already, the President almost certainly will decide about that time whether to run again.

He walked to the ball park with White House staff members and a group of visiting friends—about three quarters of a mile each way. His doctors heartily approve that kind of exercise, but has recommended the President pass up deep sea fishing during his Florida stay.

The doctors feel that would be too much exertion at this stage of the President's convalescence.

Sterling Child Chokes on Marble; Firemen Save Her

STERLING (Special)—Sterling firemen were called Friday to dislodge a marble from the throat of Debra Sue Newcomb, 20-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Newcomb.

The child reportedly was unable to catch her breath for 30 minutes after swallowing the marble. Firemen laid her on her stomach and massaged her back for 10 minutes before she coughed up the marble.

A doctor said the action of the firemen probably saved the girl's life.

Society Formally Welcomes Future Princess and Prince

NEW YORK.—(P)—The future Princess of Monaco and her Prince were formally welcomed by society Friday night amid the dazzle of a fashionable charity ball.

It was the first public appearance of lovely Grace Kelly and Prince Rainier III since their engagement on Thursday.

The orchestra struck up the national anthem of Monaco, a tiny principality overlooking the blue Mediterranean, as she and her fiancé entered the flower-bedecked grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

1,000 Guests

Some 1,000 guests, representing the cream of New York society, foreign aristocracy and members of the diplomatic corps, rose to greet them.

The 26-year-old movie star was clad in an off-shoulder brocade dress, dazzling white. A spray of white orchids with a single red rose—colors of Monaco—adorned her bosom. Her shiny blonde hair was swept in a bun. Her jewelry consisted only of a double string of pearls, her engagement ring and tiny earrings.

The 32-year-old Prince, considered one of Europe's most eligible bachelors, wore mid-night-blue formal attire. A row of foreign medals—including the grand cross of the French Legion of Honor—splashed colorfully across his chest.

Married After Easter

The engagement announcement Wednesday said the couple will be married probably shortly after Easter to enable the star to complete two film commitments.

They will reside in Monte Carlo, where Miss Kelly will be known as "Her Serene Highness, Princess of Monaco." She apparently intends to give up her successful film career.

Announces Candidacy At Morris

'Administration Deserving of Second Term'

By CHARLES WHALEN

MORRIS, Ill.—(P)—Gov. Stratton says his administration is one of "great achievements," deserving of a second term.

The Republican chief executive, a political veteran at 41, formally announced his candidacy for reelection before a festive crowd of more than 1,500 in his home town Friday night.

He said the high spots of his stewardship of the state government have been Illinois' greatest highway building program ever, increased aid to education, improved mental institutions and legislative reapportionment.

Make It An Issue

Both Stratton, through earlier statements, and Democratic leaders, in numerous speeches, have promised to make toll road construction a prime issue in the 1956 campaign.

So far the governor has no announced opposition in the primary voting for the GOP nomination. State Treasurer Warren E. Wright who is prohibited by law from seeking a second term, has indicated, however, that he will go after nomination for either governor or secretary of state.

On the Democratic side, Stephen A. Mitchell, former national party chairman, and Morris Sachs, Chicago city treasurer, are declared gubernatorial aspirants and numerous others are viewed as possible contenders.

In Politics At 26

Stratton, who entered politics at the age of 26 and has won two terms in Congress and two as state treasurer while losing two races for secretary of state, opened his eighth bid for public office by saying:

"I sincerely believe that a fair appraisal of the accomplishments of this administration would warrant an increased confidence in our ability to continue a program of progress for the ensuing four years."

He said the state, under his leadership, had embarked upon the "greatest highway construction program" in its history.

The governor took cognizance of Democratic criticism of the toll

Hint Chiang's Fliers Might Use A-Bombs

TAIPEI, Formosa (P)—U. S. Air Force Secretary Donald A. Quarles today hinted that U. S.-made Thunderjets of Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese Nationalist air force might be armed with atom bombs if a new war should erupt in the Far East.

Quarles was asked at a news conference whether Nationalist pilots now patrolling the tense Formosa Strait in the jet fighter-bombers were receiving training in handling such weapons.

"In time of war," he replied, "Nationalist Thunderjets would be used with appropriate munitions." The U. S. Air Force has said the Thunderjet can deliver atom bombs.

"It is not consistent with our law or policy to bring atomic munitions into the training program," Quarles said.

"We have other planes within striking distance manned by American crews—" He did not finish the sentence.

Possibly Quarles referred to the big B36 strategic bombers based at Guam.

Quarles said a "substantial increase" is contemplated in planes to be delivered to the Nationalist air force.

Mrs. Boston Will Address Mt. Morris Woman's Club

MT. MORRIS — (Special) — Mrs. Carroll Boston, Dixon, formerly of Mt. Morris, now president of the North Central Illinois Association for Aid of Retarded Children, will be the speaker at the January meeting of the Junior Woman's Club Monday 8 p.m.

Mrs. Boston served as the president of the Mt. Morris Senior Woman's club in 1938, and later served on various district committees.

The association for retarded children was organized in 1952, when Mrs. Boston brought together the parents of other children in the area. As a result the present school in Dixon has been purchased and is financed by tuition paid, donations and civic projects.

The Junior Woman's club for the 13th District, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, notified the association that they had again taken the school as a project this year.

Mrs. Boston stated that no small community has sufficient number of the same age range to warrant the establishing of classes at the present time in the public schools. She pointed out that there are now over 65 children in the area who are known to be in need of the type of training provided in the retarded children's school.

Wants Daily Assessment Of Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont) called today for a day-to-day assessment of American foreign policy which he said would enable this country to counter promptly Russian cold war thrusts.

Mansfield, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, criticized current U. S. foreign policy as too rigid, asserting:

"We have to be flexible to meet the situations as they arise, and therefore have to operate on what really amounts to a daily assessment schedule."

Old Ideas

The Montana Democrat said in an interview that in the light of present Russian strategy "some of the old ideas inherited from previous Democratic administrations may have outlived their usefulness."

In this connection, he said the "containment policy" was "extremely effective in bygone years." But he said its potency has "lessened considerably" now that the Soviet Union has begun what he described as "leapfrogging" over the containment line and "penetrating into forward or exposed areas" such as the Middle East, South Asia and Africa.

Mansfield spoke out after Secretary of State Dulles briefed the committee on the world outlook yesterday in a 2½-hour closed-door session.

Little Discouragement

Republican members said Dulles showed little discouragement over Russia's hardening attitude dating from the Geneva Big Four foreign ministers meeting last fall. They said Dulles indicated the Russian tactics did not come as a surprise.

Dulles' report was described by Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California as "an informative, comprehensive review." But Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) said it was "overly optimistic."

Sen. Aiken (R-Vt), another member of the committee, said in a separate interview today he thinks the world "isn't quite as tense as it was a year ago."

Mansfield said he would scan the administration's request for additional military foreign aid funds closely. But he said he would be willing to "double or even triple" funds for technical help to underdeveloped countries.

In general, Mansfield said "we've got to get away from the idea that dollars alone can decide our problems."

Rock Falls Man Dies of Fall Injury

ROCK FALLS — A 62-year-old Rock Falls man died Friday in the Home hospital after he fell from a stack of reinforcing wire in the warehouse of the Parrish Alford Fence and Machine company.

Nicholas F. Miller, an employee of the company, died at 2:30 p.m., about one and one-half hours after he fell from a stack of wire seven or eight feet high on which he had been working. A safety helmet he was wearing fell off in the tumble.

A coroner's jury ruled death was caused by multiple skull fractures.

Miller was found on the warehouse floor after the accident by Wayne Harker, Shore Acres, Rock Falls, a shipping department checker. Apparently no one saw the fall.

Miller was born in Chana, Ia., and had been an employee of the company nine years. He previously had worked for the Northwestern Steel and Wire company 32 years. Surviving are his wife, a son, three brothers and three sisters. Services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday in the Melvin funeral home. Burial will be in the Rock Falls Odd Fellows cemetery.

It Takes More Than LUCK!
To Make Your Advertising Pay Off at the Cash Register

Advertising success is almost always a matter of good management rather than of "good luck." The advertiser who consistently gets the best results, persistently follows this simple formula: (1) Advertise the right merchandise at the right price, (2) Time your advertising to suit the buying habits of your market, (3) Place your advertising where it will have the best chance of being seen by the greatest number of those who are ready to buy. Capitalize on the fact that when people are about to make a purchase, they usually turn to the advertising columns of this newspaper for information that will help them buy wisely and well. Give them this information then and there . . . and watch your sales go up. If you call this "luck," fortunately it's the kind you can make for yourself!

ANNOUNCEMENT

In order to show the need for the organizing and operation of a public transportation (bus) system to serve the city of Dixon, Illinois, and adjoining areas to include the Swissville, State Hospital, Dementown, Woodlawn Avenue, and other areas where bus service would be required, I propose to make an actual survey in these areas to find if the bus service is wanted by the public, and to what extent they will make use of it. Starting Monday, January 9, there will be a door to door survey made and the interviewer will ask the householder a few questions to determine the need for a bus system and other questions relating and will greatly appreciate the cooperation of the public in answering them.

Wash Away Holiday Stains

New Cleaners Aid Chore of Removing Damage

By KAY SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

Stir yourself from the pleasant reverie of recent holiday fun and take a critical look around. Without calling on a crystal ball for confirmation, I'll predict that the house, so carefully cleaned and polished before the holidays, is showing the strain of entertaining.

Surveying my own scene, I am amazed at how accurately the clear winter sunlight picks out the new spots on the rug, the fresh smudges on the upholstery, the trail of candied fingerprints winding its way from kitchen to bedroom.

All the baking and cooking that produced such fine eating comes to mind after a horrified look at the spattered stove, particularly the oven.

And the beauty of a white Christmas doesn't seem quite so picturesque when it's tracked across the floor by boots.

This is as good a time as any to try out the new cleanup aids that are supposed to eliminate some of the labor involved in setting the house to rights again.

One new cleanser, designed for rugs and upholstered furniture, is remarkably easy to use and, in my unscientific tests, I thought it produced better than adequate results.

This is a liquid concentrate that must be diluted with water in an eight-to-one solution. To apply to a soiled carpet or upholstery, you dip a medium white natural brush in the solution, and brush on.

Fluffy white foam froths up in the pan and on the fabric surface. You don't rinse this off nor do you vacuum the carpet. The foam subsides as the dampened area dries. Foam is said to leave a soil-resisting finish.

Another relative newcomer which combines cleaning and soil-retarding advantages has recently been packaged in convenient sizes for homemakers, though professional rug cleaners have been using it for some time.

This is also a liquid, and must be diluted before using. It is an efficient rug shampoo and can also be used to clean painted surfaces and linoleum.

It gives the cleaned surface an invisible resistance to soiling because of the colloidal silica content in the solution. Colloidal silica comes in minute particles which search out the microscopic nooks and crannies where dirt particles usually lodge.

Ordinary vacuuming doesn't oust the silica. Some carpet companies give the carpets a treatment with colloidal silica before they leave the factory.

After the kitchen floor has been scrubbed clean, a new liquid self-polishing wax promises to keep it gleaming for a long time. This new wax, which makers claim has the protective finish of paste wax, is water repellent, to such an extent that liquids can dry on the surface without spoiling the gloss.

This formulation, it's claimed, can be used as advantageously on asphalt and rubber tile, linoleum, cork, terrazzo or vinyl or sealed wood. It's as easy to apply as any self-polishing wax.

Cleaning up the spattered oven is a job I would cheerfully give up forever. But since I can't find anyone who will as cheerfully take on the job, I am stuck with it.

Consequently I'm ripe for any new oven cleaner or cleaning tip that comes along.

One new cleaner that's certainly simple to use comes in a spray can. You just spray the inside of the cold oven lightly, let it set for a few minutes then remove spray and soil with rags or scouring pad.

It's a good idea to clean up the oven regularly before it has a chance to become really crusty.

This young homemaker is cleaning her rug with a new, easy-to-use cleaner that is applied with a bristle brush. Foam subsides as carpet dries.

Coasting Will Hurt Your Lawn

A kindly homeowner whose lawn offers the only suitable place where children can coast when snow covers the ground wonders if the sled runners and tramping feet will injure the grass.

The answer is yes, for even if the soil is frozen and covered with several inches of snow any traffic over the lawn in winter will damage the turf. Of course, if this kind lady is not lawn-conscious or is willing to make repairs next spring then her yard will be the popular playground this winter. Much damage also can be caused by thoughtless newspaper carriers and other distributors of advertising and merchandise.

It's evident that our three carrier boys have had excellent home training, as they never cut across our lawn. Never has a complaint reached this desk about mailmen and milkmen cutting corners. They are considerate gentlemen, always doing what is right.

Will the building of an ice skating rink on the lawn do any harm? asks another. Under certain conditions the answer is no. However, I would not be in favor of such an undertaking if the yard is small and the grass in good condition.

No harm results if care is taken not to walk across the area during a thaw or after the snow and ice have left the ground in a soggy condition. Snow and ice will do the lawn no harm. What no plant can stand, winter or summer, is drying out, and that is the great problem of growing plants.

They can resist cold, but not drought. We are prone to forget that very dry weather occurs in winter because we see no wilting or leaves.

However, plants lose quantities of water through evaporation during dry spells.

When plants are protected by a blanket of snow the little atmosphere there is left around them under the snow is nearly saturated and, of course, the winds are completely blocked off.

The falling of snow also means that the air has more moisture in it than it has in an open winter. The air is therefore less thirsty and even the buds on the trees are not subject to such demands for water.

While a blanket of snow or ice protects grass in other ways also, its greatest service is this function of conserving the scanty winter supply of water.

Q—Window condensation has always plagued us. We were told that storm sash would stop the fogging, but now that they are installed, storm sash, too, are always wet. What do we do now? —Mrs. C. V.

A—Warm air from the interior of the house is leaking into the space between inner and outer window sash, causing condensation. First, try weatherstripping the inner sash. Or, if the sash is loose, try tightening it in the frame by resetting the stop strips. A third possibility is the frame itself is admitting warm air rising from the basement through the walls. From the basement, try stuffing insulation into stud spaces.

Here's How To Replace A Threshold

By ANDREW C. LANG

DO . . . remember that a worn threshold (sometimes called a saddle) is unsightly, leaves a gap under the door and often is a safety hazard.

DO . . . pry up the old threshold carefully so that it can be removed in one piece—if possible—and used as a model in buying or making a new one.

DO . . . when the threshold will not come loose, split it with a chisel and a mallet; the pieces then will come up easily.

DO . . . purchase a threshold the same size as the old one or slightly larger so that the excess can be trimmed off to make a tight fit.

DO . . . in putting down the new threshold, stagger the nails on either side of the center section.

DON'T . . . neglect to remove the old nails; if you hammer them into the floor, they may loosen later on and push their way up into the new threshold.

DON'T . . . forget that, occasionally, the old threshold will not come up unless you first remove the door stop, the long strip of wood that runs vertically along the door jamb.

DON'T . . . risk splitting the new threshold; drill very small pilot holes for the nails.

DON'T . . . overlook waterproofing the threshold when it is at a door where it will get wet; do this by putting asphalt roofing cement under the threshold and then coating the top with spar varnish.

DON'T . . . think that wooden thresholds are the only kind you can get; they are now made in other materials, including metal and plastic.

Tips for Painters

The smoothness of the wall determines how much paint will be needed to cover it. The smoother the wall, the less paint. Usually a gallon covers between 300 and 500 square feet.

Do the ceiling first when painting a whole room. Begin at one end and paint in strips that run the length of the ceiling.

When picking paints, select color chips from your dealer, looking at them in both artificial and natural light. Most colors look a shade or two darker on the wall.

Have your dealer mix your paint in his paint mixer. You'll never get it as well mixed with a wooden paddle.

Before applying new paint to your walls, seal all the touched up areas with shellac thinned with alcohol.

Going to paint a wall that now has a high-gloss paint on it? Then first wash the surface with a solution of one tablespoon phosphate to one gallon of warm water.

Don't paint over peeling paint. Scrape off the peeling with a putty knife. Otherwise, the new paint will flake off in a short time.

Fabric Design Now Shows Story of President's Life

The Eisenhower toile—a new printed cotton commemorates the President's notable achievements with pictures and symbols.

By KAY SHERWOOD

President Eisenhower's notable achievements, recounted many times in word and picture, are commemorated now in yet another way which will have special interest for the homemaker. This is a new fabric design made up of places and symbols that are particularly significant in Ike's career.

The Eisenhower toile, or printed cotton, is 36 inches wide, and the pattern repeats every 36 inches. Within this square yard limit, the designer, decorator Elisabeth Draper, has skillfully told the story.

Miss Draper, by the way, knows her subject well. For many years she has worked with Mrs. Eisenhower to help combine the many Eisenhower possessions into settings which reflect the First Lady's ideas and preferences.

On the fabric, set into medallions, are easily recognized pictures of Ike's childhood home at Abilene, Kans., West Point, the home in Denver where he was married. The insignia of the invasion forces, Columbia University, the White House, the Gettysburg home and the Seal of the President are included.

Also worked into the design are pictures of the battle flags of conquered nations and reminders of his hobbies of golf and painting.

Twined around the pictures are symbols of the states which have been of personal importance to him. Here you can pick out the bluebonnet of Texas, Colorado's columbine, Kansas' sunflower, the laurel of Pennsylvania and the rose of Washington, D. C. You'll also see the acorn, symbolizing strength and fruitfulness. This guided tour of the President's life is available in ten different colorings on an off-white background. One of the colorings I like the best is a soft Colonial pine yellow. You can size up the fabric yourself in the decorating departments of stores. Such a fabric is suitable for draperies or for upholstery.

Are the Eisenhowers using this personalized fabric in their own home? In answer to this question, the cautious reply was, "It has been specified for use in the Eisenhower home."

Simple Tricks Solve Problems

There are tricks in all trades, say Sally and Sidney Liberman, attractive young husband-and-wife decorating team. But the tricks in home decoration can solve many structural problems, make narrow rooms look wider, high ceilings look lower, dark rooms look lighter.

Sally and Sidney have worked out solutions for a number of common decorating problems, illustrated in the accompanying sketches. These are things the do-it-yourself man may try at home, when an unexpected problem pops up to shake his self-confidence.

Path to Chaos

Hard as it may be for the free world to believe, the French have managed to replace an unstable government with an even less stable one.

One might fairly say of the general elections that the political irresponsibility which more and more has become a hallmark of France is now enthroned.

The extremists of left and right have gained at the expense of the moderates, neither of whose two coalitions is strong enough alone to govern France.

The Center-Right group headed by outgoing Premier Edgar Faure, which led the polling, must find some means of joining with former Premier Mendes-France's Center-Left group if the French are to have a government at all.

Certainly these rival alignments are not going to get any help from the Communists or the newly formed rightist party of Pierre Poujade, fiery antitax crusader.

The Reds, who had 94 seats in the last assembly, gained more than 50 additional this time and are the strongest single party in France. Their gains should be treated with some caution, however.

Under a rigged election law, other parties put many joint tickets in the 1951 election to pool their strength and beat Communist entries. So the Reds had proportionately fewer seats than their earlier vote normally would have given them. This time there was no ganging up, and Communists won seats they were squeezed out of before.

This is of course small consolation to those hoping for stability in France. What counts in the end is the Communists' power, especially in company with the surprising Poujadists, to hamstringing effective government in a nation looked to as a key link in the chain of Western defenses.

Poujade, a small-town bookseller, ex-stevendore and ex-soccer player, has brought the rough and tumble of the waterfront and soccer field to a political movement that grew from a shopkeepers' war against the tax collector—traditional symbol of evil to the individualistic provincial Frenchman.

Using every demagogic device in the bag, and a few new ones, he has raved about France converting tax rebels into political supporters. With violence as an avowed political tactic, he cut a big enough swath to capture some 50 seats—more than twice the wildest forecasts—in the new assembly.

That a 34-year-old political nobody could make such strides with no platform and no program except negative opposition to everything and everybody is perhaps perfectly symptomatic of what ails France politically.

France today seems not very far from the point where all the power groups in the country will checkmate each other, leaving none able to govern. Since this evidently is the goal of millions, possibly such a result is inevitable.

But if it is, so is the final decline of France as a world power. Tragically, there is little enough left of that power now. With irresponsibility run rampant in the Jan. 2 elections, the crucial blow may have been dealt.

Young Women of Today May Have Keener Insight

Some of our outstanding career women are bemoaning the fact that today's high school and college girls seem to be lacking in career ambitions.

They think it is a crying shame that today's young women don't realize how hard past generations of women fought for the right to careers. They think it is pure laziness and indifference that makes a girl talk about working until she gets a husband instead of preparing herself for a career.

Maybe it isn't laziness or indifference. Maybe today's young women just know what they want, and what they want is to be wives and mothers. Perhaps they are perfectly content to let the men have the careers.

And if that is how it is, what is so bad about that?

The other day the mother of a 16-year-old girl told me that her daughter had her life all planned. She told her mother: "I'm going to college and major in home economics so I can learn all about cooking and sewing and running a house. While I'm in college I am going to be looking for a husband. Then when I finish college I'll be ready to get married."

FRANKNESS MAY BE THE ONLY DIFFERENCE

The mother said she was a bit taken aback by her daughter's announcement until she stopped to think that she herself had spent four years of college studying geology in preparation for a career with a capital C, only to marry at the end of her senior year. "And," she said with a chuckle, "though I have never had a chance to use anything I learned about geology I sure could have used some training in home economics. Maybe Sue is smarter than I was."

Maybe today's girls are smarter in facing the fact that marriage and a family are a woman's most important career. In acknowledging that fact, aren't they just cooperating with nature instead of trying to ignore that most important thing about them which is that they are after all, WOMEN?

Youths Plan Escape From Cook Lockup

CHICAGO (AP)—A detailed map of the Cook County Jail and Criminal Courts Buildings was found Friday in the cell of two teenage prisoners charged with murder who said they planned an escape.

Sheriff Joseph Lohman said Richard Pradun, 18, who claimed to have a "photographic eye," had drawn the detailed map from memory of observations he made on trips from his jail cell to the courts building. The jail and courts buildings are connected by a tunnel.

Planned Break

Lohman said Pradun and Raymond Vanoskey, 14, under indictment for murder and robbery, said they planned their break from jail next Thursday when they were scheduled to appear in court.

The sheriff described the map as one of the most detailed drawings he had ever seen of the two buildings. He said it contained all information on passageways, elevators, and other places that would figure in an escape.

The map was found by an inspector under a mattress of a bunk in the cell occupied by the two youths.

Four Indicted

The two youths were indicted, with Vanoskey's brother, Leonard 15, and Marilyn Savinski, 15, in the holdup-slashing of Anton J. Kamalick, 86, a retired street car motorman, last Nov. 6. Leonard Vanoskey has admitted the shooting. The girl was indicated as an accessory.

Three robbery indictments also have been returned against the three youths and the girl. When arrested, Pradun was a fugitive from the disciplinary barracks at the Chanute Air Force Base at Rantoul, Ill.

Questions and Answers

Q—A song composed by John Howard Payne was first sung in the opera "Clari." By what name is the song popularly known?

A—The folk song, "Home, Sweet Home."

Q—Why is the Mediterranean island of Elba famous?

A—It is the place to which Napoleon was exiled and from which he escaped to lead his armies again.

Q—Can birds be identified by their feathers?

A—Different birds have different kinds of feathers. Each kind of feather is suited to the bird's way of life. These feathers are so different that the birds can be identified by them.

Q—What agreement between the United States and Great Britain made it possible for the United States to build and control the Panama Canal?

A—The Hay-Pauncefote Treaty signed in 1901.

Q—What is the floor plan of Saint Peter's Church in Rome?

A—It is in the shape of a cross.

The Doctor Says: Treatment Is Necessary In Hemorrhoid Cases

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

It seems incredible in this day and age that anyone should adopt a hopeless attitude towards hemorrhoids yet this seems to be the case.

A mother writes that her 24-year-old son has had bleeding hemorrhoids for four years. She wants him to go to the doctor but he says it's no use. She asks specifically whether it is true that nothing can be done for the condition, and whether it is not dangerous to leave the disorder alone.

Hemorrhoids or piles are among the most common disorders of the present age. Actually, bleeding is also the most frequent sign of this condition. Although severe pain is rarely present itching is frequent.

IN ANSWER To the first question if such warning signs are ignored the bleeding is unlikely to stop of itself permanently but will probably get worse.

Hemorrhoids are clusters of enlarged veins at or around the outlet of the rectum. They may be internal or external. Chronic constipation, a long-continued cough, childbirth, and muscular strain from work are examples of what will tend to slow down the flow of blood through the hemorrhoidal veins and favor their enlargement.

If untreated, the hemorrhoids become larger and larger and more symptoms develop. Painful ulcers and cracks may form which add to the discomfort. This answers the second question.

THE TREATMENT of piles includes avoidance of chronic constipation, or unnecessary muscular strain. Once hemorrhoids have developed, however, this is not enough to make the veins return to their natural state.

Usually the best treatment is by surgery. The enlarged veins are cut out. This is probably what is necessary for the correspondent's son; surgery does not guarantee that the veins will not enlarge again, and therefore, a person who has had the operation should get advice as to the probable cause and take whatever steps are recommended to lessen the chances of recurrence.

ANOTHER QUESTION on the treatment of hemorrhoids comes from L., who says, "I am troubled with hemorrhoids, and have obtained relief by injections. Now I am told that this is a bad practice which may cover up symptoms of cancer. Other doctors disagree with this. What is your opinion?"

When symptoms of hemorrhoids are present, the possibility of cancer should be eliminated. If this is done there should be no reason for confusing the two.

So far as injections are concerned, opinions vary somewhat. Injection treatment in the hands of those who are familiar with the method and for selected patients may be all right, though apparently in recent years, it has been losing in favor of surgery.

The George Kennan, an American who hollered up the Russian revolution of 1917 which gave us Lenin, Trotsky, Stalin and the blood-baths which drowned millions of real, true Russians, was quite a fellow. He was an awful sap, as it turned out, and a mischief-maker who went to his grave in 1923 with the gore of millions of innocents on his meddling hands. But he had courage, strength and ability. He was only remotely related to the George Frost Kennan who lent a hand in the formulation of our policies toward Russia under Roosevelt and Truman and who is now holed up with the double-domes at the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, writing a book on the Russian revolution.

Well, to put the show on the road, let us start with the remarkable fact that old George was born way back in 1845. He had no education to speak of, learned to telegraph and became such a hot brass or stylus man (they hadn't yet invented the telegraph bug) that the Western Union sent him to Siberia at the age of 20 as a member of an expedition to survey a route for a land-line Europe. That was about the time that our Civil War was ending so across the Bering strait, Siberia and European Russia into West Europe. That was about the time that our Civil War was ending so maybe the kid was ducking the draft but, is so, he certainly did it the hard way. And that was about 75 years before Bubblehead Wallace sat in the office of vice-president of the United States and told me his plan to create employment and wealth and link the peoples of the world with a wide highway from New York to Paris along the same route that George Kennan helped to survey in 1865.

The Western Union expedition folded when the Atlantic cable was finished and two years' work went for nothing or very little. But in Kennan's case it yielded evil and woe to mankind worst of all for the very people whom he was trying to liberate from despotism, the common people of Russia. You would think the Western Union would have figured on the success of that cable but it didn't occur to Elspie Wallace that the flying machine might disqualify his road.

When the surveying party quit, Kennan went back to St. Petersburg and he claimed he made it all by dog-team over the snow. On the basis of that experience he did a book called "Tent Life in Siberia," published in 1870. The same year he went back to Russia to study the people, the civilization and whatever passed his eye and ear, in the Caucasus. This job took another year and then he came back and settled down in Medina, N. Y., published a little paper, and lectured on his travels. In 1877 The Associated Press hired him as assistant manager of the Washington Bureau, which must have been a soft touch because that was long before the press conference and the press agents and lobbyists at the National Press Club. There was neither I. N. S. nor U. P. then and I doubt that even my old sparring-partner, Roy Howard, the oldest newspaper hand now living, remembers the lineup of that time. In 1910, the year I broke in with the U. P., Will Irwin wrote that Roy looked like the juvenile in a rep show touring the Blue Ridge.

Kennan stuck around Washington until 1885 when the Century Company sent him to Russia to write about the exile prisons. These seem to have been pretty bad although Dave Dubinsky and other survivors had no trouble walking away. A few rubles to a few guards would wonders. Up to that time, Kennan had had no sympathy with the Russian revolutionists but he did two volumes called "Siberia and the Exile System," which in the words of Scribner's dictionary of American Biography, "had much to do with the overthrow of the Romanoff regime." That could be, but I don't see how, because those stories must have been proscribed in Russia, few of the Russians could read and, moreover, that revolution was mostly an outside job. Maybe they mean the books stirred up the animals in this country and Britain, but there again we run into the known fact that the one power which immediately gained most from the collapse of Imperial Russia was Imperial Germany, which didn't hold with revolutionism, especially against emperors. However, I recall that in my own youth we Americans cherished an ignorant prejudice against Imperial Russia when, by right, we should have realized that she was our friend. Maybe Kennan did that to us.

Kennan learned to speak and think in Russian and his books probably did enrich Western knowledge of a mysterious land. But, to me, the most tantalizing items in his pedigree are "The Far Eastern Plans of E. H. Harriman" and a biography of that old pirate in two volumes.

Those I have got to get and read because President Taft, spurning his help in politics, asked Harriman merely to obey the laws with the taunt that this would be a novel experience. Much of Harriman's capital came from Germany and even today descendants of his old financial backers, who came here from Hamburg, are powerful in his son's party in New York.

I never before heard that E. H. Harriman had any Far Eastern interests. That book covered a period before the first war and his son was Roosevelt's ambassador to Moscow in the second one.

PRESIDENTIAL POWER

The Constitution of the United States gives the president power to grant reprieves and pardons for all federal offenses except impeachment.

What happened to all of movie-town's beautiful dolls? Producer Jack Entratter interviewed 200 girls during a three-hour session for his new Cop Room lineup at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas. Only ONE miss was hired!

Not in the script: Arnold Stang: "The reason I look the same now as I did when I started in show business 17 years ago is that my face was an antique even then."

It's 13 years of marriage for the George Gobels. . . . Starlet Kathleen Hughes will keep her baby date via the natural childbirth method. Coleen Gray and Jan Sterling were the first Hollywood belles to meet the stork wide-eyed and alert. . . . Vivian Blaine made up her mind not to make up for Manny Frank. She'll file for divorce.

The divorce courts are open to everyone in these days of legal aid. If a man wants to get rid of his wife he must do it that way. If he wants her back and she refuses, it is no ground for saying that because she has been unfaithful he can kill her.

A Saturday Night Historical Notebook

Another Presidential Year... Church Building... Dixon Is Anti-Nebraska... Fremont Club

Back to the history trails after an enjoyable holiday vacation. We hope you are well started on a happy new year.

Many expect 1956 to be a history-making year, and undoubtedly it will be. We'll have the presidential campaign, the cold war, the farm problem and a hundred other worries, seemingly the same as in the past, yet each unique.

We can't write a summary of events for 1956, but how about an account of the big events in another year, 1856? That was a presidential year, too, with James Buchanan and John C. Fremont as the major contenders. Along with political activity, Dixon was in a period of church building.

The account of 1856 is from the "History of Dixon and Palmyra" printed in 1880.

Jan. 16, 1856. A building owned and occupied by Mrs. Patrick, on the corner of Ottawa & Main streets, caught fire about midnight and was burned to the ground. S. G. Patrick lost $3,000 in notes, law books, manuscripts, etc.

NAMELESS MINSTRELS

GENTS:—By request of many citizens we, as the Town Board of Trustees, invite you to give a concert at your earliest convenience: the proceeds to go towards purchasing a Fire engine for the corporate town of Dixon.

By order of the Trustees.

The concert was given February 20th. The "nameless" have since become "well known" as Jerome Holbrook, Oliver Wagner, D. B. Dresser, W. W. Curtis, Jason C. Ayres, Jerome Hollenbeck, Sidney Andrews, John G. Price, and H. T. Noble.

Feb. 17, 1856. The Presbyterian church was dedicated by W. W. Harsha. This building stood immediately adjoining the present church structure, and was a small brick building, 28 by 42 feet.

At the election held March 3, 1856, the Town Trustees elected were John H. Cropsey, Wm. Butler, N. W. Abbott, Harvey Morgan, and H. T. Noble.

April 9, 1856. The Unitarian church in North Dixon was dedicated. This building was situated on the corner near Clute's shoe shop, and was removed many years ago.

June 3, 1856. Anti-Nebraska meeting held in Dixon, and a society formed for promoting the settlement of Kansas by assisting bonafide emigrants to that territory; $1,000 was subscribed for that purpose.

June 14, 1856. Messrs. Cropsey, Dement, & Noble commence the erection of a large hotel (Shabbona house) near the depot.

Aug. 2, 1856. The stable belonging to the Mansion house was set on fire and entirely consumed together with eleven horses, peddler's wagon, etc. Loss about $5,000.

Aug. 9, 1856. James K. Edsall, of Kansas, addresses the Young Men's Fremont Club at the Court house. The Telegraph, three weeks later in speaking of Mr. E. said: Mr. Edsall was a member of the Topeka Legislature, Kansas, which was dispersed by President Pierce on the Fourth of July last. He has permanently located in Dixon, the "blockade of Kansas" not permitting him to practice in that unfortunate territory, on account of his peculiar love of freedom.

Sept. 2, 1856. The ladies of Dixon presented the Fremont club a beautiful banner.

The three story brick building on Main street known as Herrick's building, now owned by J. C. Ayres, was erected in the fall of 1856.

Sept. 28, 1856. Services held in the new Episcopal church by Rev. Mr. Todd, rector. (Note: The "new" church mentioned is the present Episcopal church.)

Dr. Harry E. Pratt, state historian, reports Illinois residents were generous with their gifts of historic papers and mementos to the Illinois State Historical Library last year.

During 1955 the library added 34 manuscripts to its Abraham Lincoln collection, which now includes 1,111 original papers and is the third largest in the country.

Most of the new papers are brief notes, but there are several longer ones. A number concern prominent Illinoisans of the Civil War period, including Governors Richard Yates, Richard J. Oglesby and John M. Palmer and Generals John A. Logan and John A. McClelland.

Dr. Pratt says several of the notes have never been published in any collection of Lincoln's works.

Other newly acquired Lincolniana includes two small busts and a watercolor portrait. One bust, in bronze, is the work of the Barrington, Ill., sculptor Carl Tolpo. The other is marble and was made by Martin Milmore, Irish-American sculptor of the post-Civil War period.

The two-by-three foot portrait shows Lincoln in a reading pose and was presented by its painter, Nicholas Todoroff, Oak Park.

Still another bronze addition is a life mask of Lincoln, cast from the original by Leonard Volk and presented in 1919 by Volk's son, Douglas, to the author-diplomat, Brand Whitlock.

If you plan to be in Springfield soon, the four works of art are on display in the Horner-Lincoln room of the Historical Library in Centennial Building.

Other materials added to the library collection includes 50 items on Vachel Lindsay. These are letters, manuscripts, drawings and a series of photographs of the poet made in 1919.

Two letters by Robert G. Ingersoll, who worked in Amboy as a youth, were added to the Ingersoll collection. The library also received the large black "shingle" with gold lettering that hung outside the offices of Ingersoll and his brother, Ebon C. Ingersoll, when they were law partners in Shawneetown from 1855 to 1857.

What Dixon talked about:

100 YEARS AGO—1856

"Ralph Waldo Emerson, the scholar, the sound thinker, the world renowned essayist, the philosopher, etc., etc., red (sic) a very prosey lecture, on 'BEAUTY,' before the Dixon Lecture Association, on Thursday evening. Many that heard Mr. Emerson were pleased, but we must beg leave to differ with those who consider it a 'popular lecture.'—The lecture bore evidence of ripe scholarship, and contained (sic) many instances of history, but it had little that was original. It was delivered in a most miserable style. It would have been quite interesting to read, some rainy day, put (sic) to pay $50 to hear him read it was 'paying too much for the whistle.'"

Dress of Blue Velvet Worn by Holiday Bride

Residing in Dixon, following a honeymoon trip to New Orleans, La., are newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lee Taylor Jr. Their wedding, an event of Dec. 26, took place in the First Methodist church, Dixon.

Mrs. Taylor is the former Mary Elizabeth Pool, daughter of Mrs. C. G. Pool, 403 Ottawa av., Dixon, and the late Dr. Pool. The bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lee Taylor, reside at 319 East Second st.

White mums with gladioli and white tapers in candelabra were used in decorating for the early afternoon wedding. Rev. Sidney Bloomquist officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. J. H. Hughes, Amboy, was nuptial organist. Her selections included "I Love You Truly" and "Because," also the traditional wedding marches.

Ballerina Gown
The bride was lovely in a ballerina gown of light blue velvet with matching hat. Her frock was designed with a portrait neckline, fitted bodice, and full skirt. She carried a bouquet of white roses and carnations with white streamers.

As matron of honor, Mrs. Darrell Biggs, Dixon, was attired in a champagne colored dress. Her ballerina frock was styled with a low neckline and fitted bodice. She wore a matching hat and carried a bouquet of garnet roses.

William Freres, Dixon, served as best man.

Missed Karen Pool, Dixon, sister of the bride, and Jill Whitlow, Dixon, cousin of the bridegroom, lit the candles preceding the ceremony. Karen was in rose velvet and Jill wore blue taffeta. They had white nosegays centered with red rosebuds.

The bride's mother wore a gown of pale blue brocade with white accessories. With her brown knit dress the bridegroom's mother wore matching accessories. Both wore pink carnation corsages.

Home Reception
White mums and gladioli also green foliage were used in decorating the bride's home for the wedding reception. Refreshments were served from a candlelight table graced with a blue and white wedding cake. The cake was topped with small white pompons.

Mrs. Casey Tally, Dixon, aunt of the bridegroom, served the cake; Judy Thompson, Elgin, cousin of the bride, had the guest book, and another cousin, Jane Thompson, Elgin, was in charge of the gifts. Jill Whitlow served the punch.

When the newlyweds departed for their wedding trip the bride donned a grey suit with white accessories and a corsage of white roses.

Dixon Grads
A 1951 graduate of Dixon high school the bride attended Eureka college and graduated from Lincoln College. While at Eureka she was affiliated with Phi Omega sorority. Mary Elizabeth is now employed by the USF&G Ins. Co., Dixon.

Now a sales representative for Liggett and Meyers, the bridegroom attended Northern Illinois State college, DeKalb, and Bradley university. His fraternity was Pi Kappa Alpha. He graduated from Dixon high school in 1950.

Winter Wedding

MT. MORRIS—Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Knodle, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Ellen, to Norman L. Ludwig, Forrester. Mary Ellen, a 1955 graduate of Mt. Morris high school, is employed at Kable News Co.

Norman graduated in 1952 from Forrester high school and served two years in the Army. He presently farms with his father.

The wedding will take place in the Methodist Church, Jan. 14.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS
The Dixon Woman's Relief Corps will have a regular meeting at 2 p.m. Monday in Loveland Community House.

BAPTIST CIRCLE II
Circle II of the Women's Fellowship, First Baptist Church, will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 10, in the home of Mrs. Jesse Wirth, 206 Steele Ave. Mrs. E. A. Dimmick will be co-hostess.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES LEE TAYLOR

Adviser Pilgrim Writes Hints on Home Interiors

By JUNE PILGRIM
Lee County Home Adviser

Homemakers who are cooperators in our extension program are going to be "boning up" on the improvement of the interior of their homes, during January or February. Local leaders will be presenting the lesson entitled "Paints For Walls and Woodwork", while I will be discussing the subject of "Accessories". My subject being "Accessories Can Make or Mar the Home."

Miss Dorothy Iwig, home furnishing specialist of the University of Illinois, was in Lee County in December and trained leaders on the subject of paints. She pointed out that no paint is better than the way it is put on. Walls need to be carefully washed and freed of their grease and dust film if we expect paint to adhere. Another point she made was that paints are constantly improving. Research departments of our paint companies are continually improving their paints. Our newer paints at the present time are the "alkyd" paints. Another type "the acrylic" is being worked on now and will probably eventually be marketed.

The "alkyd paints" are the newest thing we have now and do things that other paints won't do. This paint has low odor and also possesses the quality of self-priming. You'll find it satisfactory to use on radiators, registers and over stoves, where heat is present, also easier to apply. Because alkyd paints do more, you must expect to pay more for them.

No Shine
Miss Iwig pointed out a fact at her recent training school, that the "shine era" is out. The matte or dull finish is the thing that is high style now in interior decoration. For that reason, the flat wall paints have been popular and continue so. When we wish to paint walls and woodwork trim alike in color, a fine combination is to use semi-gloss paints on the woodwork and flat paint on the walls. Most paint companies have the colors co-ordinated or closely matched. This gives you washability on that woodwork which often becomes soiled faster and requires washing.

If still more all-over washability is desired, semi-gloss paints can be used on both walls and woodwork. Or still another combination might be semi-gloss walls and enamel woodwork.

Read Label
When painting, be careful to read the label on the can. These labels and instructions contain very valuable helps for the "do-it-yourselfer". Paints change and the things you do with them may very likely change—especially if you have not painted for several years.

Home Accounts
One of the best resolutions for the year 1956 is to get some kind of home account book and plan to keep track of your expenditures and earnings. This can give you a means of evaluating how well you manage your money. Family account books are set up by the University of Illinois and are available for 25 from the Lee County Home Bureau office. We are glad to make them available to any and all families who might desire them.

Three to four thousand wise folks in Illinois use this home account every year. After a year of account keeping, the county extension office can provide a summary to interested families. This summary shows how others spent their money and you can compare your family to the average.

To Make Stick
When paint is being applied over old paint that's in good condition, roughen the surface so that the next coat will stick. One of the first and best things to do is to first wash the wall with strong soap and water or some kind of high alkaline paint cleaner. It is also possible to use a thin paste solution of strong scrubbing powder and water. Rinse this soap or cleaner well and let the surface dry thoroughly (for at least 48 hours). Then give it a light sanding with fine sandpaper and dust it well. With the soil and gloss removed, you can be quite sure

Carolee Bollman, Pfc. Murphy to Wed January 15

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bollman, Wausung, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Carolee, to Pfc. Robert Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Zmudka, Dixon. The wedding will take place Sunday, Jan. 15, in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Dixon.

Miss Bollman attended high school in Polo and is now employed at Lawton Brothers Dairy Bar, Dixon. Pfc. Murphy, now home on furlough, has been stationed at Fort Dix, New Jersey. He attended high school in Dixon.

Engaged

MT. MORRIS — Mr. and Mrs. Roy H. Bender, Bloomington, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lois Ruth, to Donald M. Merwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Millard B. Merwin, Mt. Morris. Miss Bender will graduate from Northern Illinois State College, DeKalb, June 3.

Merwin, who also attended the DeKalb college, is presently employed by the Ogle Service Co. The couple plans a June 30 wedding.

GRACE COOPER SOCIETY

The Grace Cooper Walter Missionary Society of St. Paul's Lutheran Church will meet at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 10, in the home of Mrs. George Weyant, 515 Second Ave. Miss Rose Rudolph will be assisting hostess.

Mrs. Harlan Benson and Mrs. Edward Bollman will be the leaders.

that your new coat of paint will stick to the old one.

If the old paint is rough and marred, sand it down until all roughness and any marred spots disappear. Here again it's important to finish by dusting the walls so that the new paint will stick.

For 1956
Here's a valuable excerpt which appeared in the January issue of the Whiteside County Home Bureau newsletter. I like it's comment on the "Things to Remember in 1956." (1) The value of time (2) The success of perseverance (3) The pleasure of working (4) The dignity of simplicity (5) The worth of character (6) The influence of example (7) The power of kindness (8) The obligation of duty (9) The wisdom of economy (10) The virtue of patience (11) The improvement of talent (12) The joy of originating.

These points are well worth each of us considering carefully. And we might just stop and think a minute about them, too!

You know, January is named for the Roman God Janus, who was the deity of gates and doors—hence all beginnings. He is represented as having one head with two faces, one of which looked back on the past; the other toward the future.

New horizons are in the offing, so salute the New Year, get a new outlook and you can be sure of new and better developments. Twirl your own crystal ball and make it stop where you want it to, by working diligently toward the things you want most in 1956.

Dixon PEO Plans Cottey College Party Tuesday

Chapter AC of the PEO Sisterhood, Dixon, is inviting all junior and senior girls of Dixon high school, also all other young women of the area who are interested, to a Cottey College punch party Tuesday, Jan. 10. The 4 p.m. event will take place in Loveland Community House, Dixon. Mrs. F. J. Trautwein and Mrs. Russell Byers are members of Chapter AC Cottey committee.

Mrs. Byers will show pictures and tell items of interest about the college. Miss Mary Julia Horton, daughter of the Claude Hortons, Dixon, who attended Cottey last year, will also show pictures and answer questions.

Cottey college, Nevada, Mo., was founded in 1884 by Virginia Alice Cottey and carried forward under her presidency until 1927, when the PEO Sisterhood accepted it from her as a gift. Since 1927 it has been a major project of the PEO Sisterhood.

The college offers a two year liberal arts program which includes the work prerequisite for curricula in all the major professions and fields of specialization. Cottey is fully accredited, its graduates being admitted to third year standing in all leading four year colleges and universities.

The fine arts program is an integral part of Cottey's plan. Every student may participate in any phase of it without fee. Private instruction is available in music, painting, play production, modern dance, ballet and others. The college provides annually for each student, bus trips to a concert, stage play and a visit to the Nelson Gallery. From six to 10 persons of distinction are "Campus Visitors" each year and the college cooperates with the Star Theatre of Nevada in presenting the Cottey college Art Cinema Series, eight movies.

Dress up canned small white onions. Stick a whole clove in each and heat in a cream sauce.

Phidian Club

When Phidian Art club members met Tuesday afternoon in Loveland Community House, Mrs. William Edwards presented the interesting paper, "What Is an American?" Miss Dorothy Armington presided at the beautifully appointed refreshment table.

Mrs. Edwards Graydon Moll and John Roe were hostesses.

WESLEYAN SOCIETY

A regular meeting of the Wesleyan Society will be held at the Methodist Church, Tuesday, with a scramble supper at 6:30 o'clock. A meat dish and coffee will be furnished.

Miss Mary Ransom will show pictures of her recent trip to Africa. Special music will also be featured.

Members are requested to be present and visitors are always welcome.

BAPTIST CIRCLE III

Circle III of the First Baptist Church will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 10, in the home of Mrs. Grace Sitter, 909 Galena Ave. Mrs. Sadie Schwab will be co-hostess.

BAPTIST CIRCLE IV

Circle IV of the First Baptist Church will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 10, in the home of Mrs. J. H. Baker, Bon Aire Motel.

Jigtime supper dish: Add tuna, broken into chunks, to canned macaroni with cheese sauce. Sprinkle with grated cheese and place in a moderate oven to heat while you are setting the table and putting a green salad together. French bread can go into the oven to heat along with the casserole. A big bowl of crisp red apples and succulent fresh pears for dessert with lots of coffee!

President Schedules Conference

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—President Eisenhower will hold an informal news conference here Sunday—his first since his September heart attack. But it was uncertain whether he would talk about his political future.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, told newsmen the convalescing President had volunteered to report to them on the state of his health, on how he has enjoyed his Florida stay and about his work plans for the immediate future. Eisenhower returns to Washington Sunday.

In response to questions, Hagerty said in effect that no questions would be barred—including the big one of whether he will seek reelection. But Hagerty added that he doubted Eisenhower would answer all types of questions.

Eisenhower will meet with newsmen at his naval base living quarters here at about 8 a.m. CST. He plans to take off for Washington at 10 a.m. CST.

road program as a "mess" by saying it has been developed "despite the opposition of misguided people" and that "no amount of misleading propaganda can obscure the wisdom of our planning nor the accomplishments of our highway building."

Tax Necessary
He said the half-cent sales tax increase enacted last year was necessary to meet budget needs of schools and welfare institutions. Stratton said the state's mental hospitals no longer are a "political football" and that, for the first time in years, "every patient in every welfare institution sleeps in his own bed and not on the floor."

He described the revision of legislative districts last year, the first in half a century, as a "trail blazing program."

Stratton said achievements of his administration also included civil service reforms, a larger state police force, increased labor benefits, constitutional revisions, improved prison conditions and aid for cities.

Cites Savings
And, he said, his vetoes of certain measures had saved more than $4 million dollars—"the greatest blow ever struck by any governor in the taxpayer's interest."

Among those on hand at the Morris High School gymnasium were Secretary of State Charles F. Carpenter, Auditor Orville E. Hodge, Atty. Gen. Latham Castle, Lt. Gov. John Chapman, Supreme Court Clerk Mrs. Faye I. Searcy and Elmer Hoffman of Wheaton, who is running for state treasurer.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen was a notable absentee among the Republican leaders. He is in Washington at the recently opened congressional session.

The Illinois primaries are scheduled for April 10.

DOUBLE TROUBLE

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. (AP)—Everett (Skeeter) Diehl, 14, suffered both bullet and buckshot wounds in the leg when accidentally struck by a 30-30 rifle bullet.

Diehl was mistaken for a deer by a member of his hunting party. The high powered rifle bullet struck a 410 shotgun shell in the youth's pocket and exploded it.

Communists-in-Press Will Get New Airing

Sen. Eastland Says New Evidence Is Uncovered

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Eastland (D-Miss) said today evidence is being developed for a new round of hearings on alleged Communist infiltration of the press, radio and television.

He said the inquiry by the Senate Internal Security subcommittee he heads already has shown "a significant effort on the part of Communists to penetrate leading American newspapers."

The subcommittee concluded three days of hearings late Friday in which 18 witnesses were questioned. Of these, 14 were present or former employees of the New York Times.

Eastland told reporters he was unable to say now soon the next set of hearings would be held but, in answer to a question, he said that so far as he knew now none of the witnesses would be employees of the Times.

In an editorial, the Times contended it had been "singled out" for attack because it championed desegregation of Southern schools and other causes it said Eastland and some of his associates opposed. Eastland denied this, saying the investigation was not aimed at the Times or any other paper.

In a joint statement with Sen. Jenner (R-Ind), the senior GOP member of the subcommittee,

Eastland said as the hearings ended Friday night that "to the extent that our hearings uncover a problem of attempted Communist infiltration of the press, we feel confident that the American press will prove fully competent to deal with the problem in its own, American way."

Joined In 1935

The final witness Friday was Dr. Benjamin Fine, education editor of the Times and the holder of many honorary university degrees for his contributions to education.

Dr. Fine testified that in 1935, while a graduate student at Columbia University, he made "the tragic mistake" of joining the Communist party for about a year.

He said that he always had been an "inactive" member "in the sense that my heart wasn't in it" and he concluded his testimony by advising today's students to "keep away from anyone who talks the Communist line."

Both Eastland and Jenner praised Dr. Fine as "a fine citizen" and "a credit to the business."

Two Fired

Six other witnesses were questioned by the subcommittee Friday and all of them also were present or recent employees of the New York Times. Two said they had been fired or forced to resign by the Times after they had indicated to the paper that they intended to invoke their Fifth Amendment Protection against possible self-incrimination.

The two were Nathan Aleskovsky, until recently assistant book review editor of the Sunday New York Times, and Jack Shafer, a copyeditor.

Three other Times news department employees refused to answer some questions, but did not invoke the Fifth Amendment. They were

Alden Whitman and Robert Shelton, both copyreaders, and Seymour Peck, a desk man for the paper's Sunday magazine.

Shelton refused to say whether he is a Communist and challenged the subcommittee's right to ask him. He cited the free speech and free press guarantees of the First Amendment.

A Red 13 Years
Whitman said he had been a Communist between 1935 and 1948 before joining the Times staff in 1951. He also testified that he had belonged to a small Communist cell at the New York Herald-Tribune before quitting the party in 1948 but refused to name any persons he had known as fellow Communists.

Peck testified he was a Communist party member from 1935 until early in 1949 and belonged to Red cells at the New York Star and P.M. both now defunct, before going to work for the Times. He declined to name others in the cells.

The other New York Times employee who testified Friday was Matilda Landsman, a linotype operator, who refused to say whether she was a Communist and invoked her Fifth Amendment protection time after time.

The other composing room employees of the Times, Jerry Zalph and Otto Albertson, previously had refused under their Fifth Amendment privilege to tell the subcommittee whether they are Communists.

Shafer, in invoking the Fifth Amendment, also refused to say if he is a Communist. Aleskovsky swore he is not now a Communist but he refused to say if he ever had been.

Other than Shelton, the only present employees of the Times who refused to say whether they are now Communists were the three composing room employees.

Fires Employee
The New York Daily Mirror announced Friday the discharge of Daniel Mahoney, a rewrite man who appeared before the subcommittee Thursday. Mahoney testified he is not now a Communist, but refused under Fifth Amendment protection to say whether he had ever been.

The New York Daily News had announced earlier the discharge of William A. Price, a reporter, for similar reasons.

M. Michael Potoker, secretary-treasurer of the Newspaper Guild of New York, said the executive board would study individually the cases of its members discharged to determine whether the action will be contested.

French Count Charged With Bathtub Death
LOS ANGELES (AP)—French Count Jean Gaston Bourdillon de Queyral was free today on $100,000 bail awaiting an extradition hearing on a Mexican charge of murder in the bathtub death of his 62-year old wife.

The bond, which includes an assignment of the count's share in his wife's $250,000 estate, was fixed Friday by U. S. Commissioner Theodore Hocke.

The count has denied he was responsible for the drowning of his wife, Marguerite, in Cuernavaca, Mexico, last July. An extradition hearing has been set for Jan. 20.

The count, 45, and the California Institute of Technology are involved in a court battle over his late wife's estate. She was the widow of Dr. Louis G. Stokvis, Caltech professor.

SPECIALIST BLAMES HEREDITY FOR INCREASING HEART DEATHS
LOS ANGELES (AP)—A leading specialist blames heredity more than high-pressure living for the increasing rate of heart deaths.

He is Dr. Irvine Page, Cleveland, Ohio, president of the American Heart Assn.

"I think that men lived at high pressure ever since they built the pyramids in Egypt," he said. "Something else is responsible for our continued increase in heart deaths."

"About 800,000 are dying of heart disease now, and we have predicted that no less than 1,200,000 will succumb to heart disease in 1960."

Alden Whitman and Robert Shelton, both copyreaders, and Seymour Peck, a desk man for the paper's Sunday magazine.

Shelton refused to say whether he is a Communist and challenged the subcommittee's right to ask him. He cited the free speech and free press guarantees of the First Amendment.

One motorist stopped suddenly when the hood of his car flew up and five cars piled into each other behind him. The fifth and sixth cars, above, caught fire, causing serious injuries to three motorists. One escaped fire by smashing window.

Seize Russian Who Held Off Cops With Gun

NIDDRIE, Ont. (AP)—A gunting Russian immigrant rail worker who had held off a half dozen cops from his barricaded shack for nearly 24 hours, was finally arrested Friday night, unarmed and unresisting.

Police closed in on Mike Timocenko, 34, as he trudged through the dark pulling his pregnant young wife on a sled.

Authorities said Timocenko, who had fired more than 100 rounds of ammunition during the siege, was unarmed and put up no struggle. Police picked him up as he walked along the Canadian National Railway tracks two miles east of Niddrie.

Timocenko began his revolt Thursday after a quarrel with his brother-in-law Anthony Sydor of Oakburn, Man. Neighbors told police he chased Sydor into the bush with a rifle then began "threatening to shoot everyone in sight."

Later Timocenko barricaded himself in the cabin with his wife and smashed windows to direct potshots at police. The police did not return fire for fear of hitting the woman.

Two Injured In Auto Crash Near Franklin

Two persons suffered minor injuries in an automobile accident early this morning on Alt. Rt. 30 a mile east of Franklin Grove.

Mary Staples, 45, and Ruth Mavigliano, 17, both of Chicago, were treated for lacerations and bruises at the KSB hospital, Dixon.

According to Deputy Sheriff Donald Sachs, the car, driven east by Mary Staples ran off the road on a curve to avoid an oncoming car in the wrong lane. The car went onto an embankment and stopped with its front wheels on the Chicago Northwestern Railroad tracks.

The driver and the car's five passengers, including two small children, abandoned the car, and an eastbound train struck it about 10 minutes later. Sachs said the front of the car was heavily damaged.

All the occupants of the car were from Chicago.

CLAIM EDEN WILL PROPOSE AID PLAN FOR MIDDLE EAST
NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Herald Tribune said today Britain will propose to the United States that the two nations co-sponsor a Marshall plan type of economic aid organization open to all Middle East states.

In a dispatch from London, the paper said Prime Minister Eden will make this proposal to President Eisenhower when the two meet in Washington later this month.

HALT WORK ON NAVY'S VERTICAL TAKE-OFF PLANE
BURBANK, Calif. (AP)—Lockheed Aircraft Corp. has stopped work on the vertical take-off plane it was building for the Navy.

The company Friday confirmed an earlier statement by a Navy spokesman in Washington that the contract was terminated by mutual agreement several months ago.

The plane, named the XFV-1, developed "bugs" in its turboprop engine which were insurmountable at ground level, a Lockheed spokesman said.

This plane made the first successful aerial conversion from horizontal to vertical flight. But it never took off vertically from the ground. Test pilot Herman (Fish) Salmon made all test flights above 10,000 feet.

Mountain Crumbles; Moves House

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A mountain-side cracked Friday night sending tons of rock and dirt rumbling into an exclusive Sherman Oaks residential section.

One couple could only watch as the slowly moving force pushed their $33,900 house off its foundation and pressured down a rear wall. Another home was menaced by the slide.

Robert Gross, 35, said he and his wife were cleaning the unoccupied house when he heard noises in the back yard. Gross found the rear yard filling with earth and the structure moved four inches off its foundation.

The slide continued and this morning the house had moved eight more inches, sections of the rear walls had collapsed and the rear rooms were filling with the rocks and dirt.

The crack at the top of the small mountain, about 175 feet back from the homes, was about 375 feet long and 27 feet wide.

Also endangered by the slide was a home owned by E. W. Kulech.

Police barricaded streets. A water line was shut down and a standby crew watched gas lines in the area.

FBI Chief Abhors the Word 'Cop'

WASHINGTON (AP)—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover today offered a motion that the word "cop" as applied to policemen be thrown out of the American language.

"As a career law enforcement officer, I abhor the word 'cop' in reference to members of our profession," Hoover wrote in a signed editorial in the January issue of the FBI's law enforcement bulletin.

"Especially deplorable is the use of the term—a standard derisive invective of the underworld—in a careless or disdainful manner by ordinarily law-abiding citizens," Hoover wrote.

Word authorities differ widely on how "cop" got into the language. Some connect it with the copper badges once worn by British and New York City police. Others say it is a short for "constable of police," the title that used to accompany the signature on official police reports. Most regard "cop" as slang for "copper," and associate the latter word with the old French verb "capr," which means "to capture."

Dukes Top Hubs 58-56 in Final Second

Frankenberry Decides Game With Free Throws

Ken's Two Charity Shots Break 56 to 56 Deadlock

By ART MATHERS
(Telegraph Sports Editor)

If the guy who wrote the Frank Meriwell stories is looking for fresh material, he might do well to purchase a season ticket for the 1955-56 Dixon High basketball games.

Last night on the Dixon High court, for the second time in their last three home games, Coach Lyle Bogott's Dixon Dukes engaged in a struggle that wasn't decided until the final second of play. And this time there was a happy ending.

Converts Both
Forward Ken Frankenberry supplied the heroics on this occasion for Dixon's "Team Named Desire" as he connected on both halves of a one-and-one free throw to snap a 56-56 tie with the Rochelle High Hubs. The resultant 58-56 triumph kept Dixon's record unblemished in NCIC play, with two victories and no losses.

Perhaps more important than the win in the NCIC championship picture is the fact that the Dukes

Dukes at Rock Falls

The Dixon Dukes will be after their fourth straight victory tonight at Rock Falls High, when they face the Rock Falls Rockets of the NCIC in an exhibition game.

are establishing themselves as a club which doesn't give up when things aren't going well. That's an ingredient normally found in championship teams.

Showing the effect of their 20-day holiday layoff but still playing a sound brand of ball, the Dukes lost the lead midway in the second period and never regained it until the last minute and 33 seconds.

Long Haul
Dixon trailed from one to seven points during their long uphill haul, with the lead usually fluctuating between three and five. Rochelle led 45-45 at the end of the third quarter, 52-47 with 6 1/2 minutes left, and as late as the final 3 1/2 minutes Dixon was in arrears by 54-51.

Ken Mueller scored from under the basket with about three minutes remaining, closing the span to one point, 54-53.

Rochelle went into a stall at this point, but the Dukes finally got possession with less than two minutes showing on the clock as referee Richard Holmbeck ruled that Rochelle had violated the rule about returning the ball behind the ten-second line.

Dixon's Hill Hits

The Rochelle coaches and fans protested vigorously, but while they were still talking about it Dixon's Bob Hill moved inside the foul circle and pumped a jump shot dead to the hoop, putting the Dukes in front at 56-55 with 1:35 to go.

Rochelle quickly called time out, but before play resumed again referee Holmbeck called a technical foul on Hub coach Ed Thommen. Thommen insisted after the game that the official had mistakenly interpreted his remarks to Dixon Coach Lyle Bogott as directed at Holmbeck.

But Holmbeck commented in the dressing room that the technical was the result of verbal abuse by Thommen throughout the game.

Free Throw Good

Hill made the free throw good. After Dixon froze the ball for 27 seconds Max Akerman missed on a one-and-one foul shot at 1:06, but the Dukes entered the last minute ahead by two.

Hub captain and guard Bill Larson then hit with a jump shot from the corner and it was knotted at 56-56 in the final 49 seconds.

As frenzied fans screamed frantically for Dixon to shoot, the Bogottmen stalled for one last shot. At eight seconds, Akerman fired a long one-hander which was close but missed. Dixon's rebounders then missed three more hurried tosses in the ensuing seconds before Frankenberry was presented his game-winning chance with one second to go.

Wild Heave
Rochelle's Denny Mutton got off a wild heave from about 60 feet away just before the gun sounded, but it wasn't even close.

All the Dixon starters and sub forward John Peterson turned in creditable performances, in another fine display of team play, but it was Akerman's night to hit from the field and Max was in great form. He poured in nine field goals, including six from outside and added two out of three free throws for 20 points.

Frankenberry, hitting in spurts both from outside and inside, was next with seven and two for 16. He scored mostly on jump shots and hooks.

Gary Reeder and Ken Mueller, although not scoring too well, both turned outstanding work under the boards. When the Dukes regained their rebounding edge in the final

Dons Appear Good Bet to Break Mark

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

Unless another major earthquake hits San Francisco, major college basketball's 19-year-old winning-streak record has just 15 more days to live.

The 39-game string of successes was set by Long Island University in 1935-37. Seton Hall matched it in 1939-41.

Tie It Friday

San Francisco's top-ranked Dons figure to tie it next Friday against Fresno State. And they ought to break past the barrier Jan. 28 against California. They meet Santa Clara next Tuesday.

The Dons closed in on the record by peppering Pepperdine 62-51 Friday night. It was their 11th success of the season and their 37th straight, matching the old record set by Texas in 1913-17.

San Francisco hustled past Pepperdine in typical style with All-America Bill Russell showing the way with 25 points and commanding the boards with 21 rebounds.

Only Leader Playing

The Dons were the only members of the top 10 in action Friday night, but the big boys have a big night ahead. North Carolina State, No. 2, goes after its 24th in a row playing Duke, rated No. 11, in an Atlantic Coast Conference match. And Dayton, No. 3, should have little trouble making it 11-0 against little Iowa.

North Carolina, No. 5, meets Wake Forest in another ACC game, while Georgia Tech, which pulled the upsets of the season last year by twice defeating mighty Kentucky, runs into the sixth-ranked Wildcats once again in a Southeastern Conference scrap. George Washington—No. 7 plays Richmond in the Southern Conference tussle and Kansas State tests Iowa State—No. 8 in the Big Seven.

Indiana and Wisconsin square off in the Big Ten's TV game of the day.

Mountaineers Lose

West Virginia, No. 19, was the only other ranked team on the go Friday night and the Mountaineers were dumped to a third defeat 54-53 by up-and-down Villanova. Jack Weissman's two foul shots with 68 seconds left did it.

Late Rally Tops Walnut Five, 58-55

ELMWOOD—(Special)—Coach Chuck Vail's Walnut Blue Raiders put up a valiant scrap in a game here Friday night, but the Elmwood Trojans were able to come through when they needed it most to fend off the Raiders 58 to 55.

Elmwood also copped the frosh-soph game, winning 46-45 in overtime.

Helps Trojans

The varsity game, a South Blackhawk Conference battle, kept Elmwood in contention for the league lead with a 3-1 record. Walnut is now 1-3 in loop play.

Walnut moved in front by 13-10 in the first quarter, but the home team fought back to carry a 25-21 edge to the dressing room. Again Walnut found the range in the third period, outscoring Elmwood 23 to 18 to carry a lead of 44-43 into the final stanza.

The Raiders stayed in contention much of the final frame, leading 46-45 and 54-53 before the black-clad Trojans moved in front to stay.

O'Bryan Leads

Ed O'Bryan of Walnut took game scoring honors with 19. For Elmwood, Kratzer's 16 and Jones' 14 were high. Jones padded his total with 10 free throws. The scoring:

ELMWOOD (58): Whitney 13; Coon 11; Jones 14; Patterson 2; Kratzer 16; Harding 2.
WALNUT (55): O'Bryan 19; Waterhouse 8; Etheridge 12; Gledin 8; Burkey 8.

Amboy JVs Beat F. Grove, 65-58

AMBOY (Special)—An 18-9 edge in the second quarter meant the difference at the Amboy High court Friday night as the Amboy Junior Varsity bested the Franklin Grove varsity quintet by a 65-58 margin.

Franklin Grove's Wildcats saw their first-period lead of 18-16 fade to 34-27 at the half and 52-42 at the end of the third before battling back to shave three points off the lead by the game's end.

In the prelim, the Amboy freshmen downed Franklin Grove's frosh, 59 to 40.

DEFY BOXING COMMISSIONER—Charlie Johnston, president of the International Boxing Guild of which the New York Boxing Guild is an affiliate, points during discussion at Guild headquarters in New York City. The Guild voted not to dissolve its membership as ordered by Julius Helfand, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission. Helfand outlawed the Guild after an inquiry, telling all managers to get out or lose their licenses.

Cardinals Pull Away From Pack 72-62 Win Over Indians Gives Them 3 Game Lead

FORRESTON—(Special)—Members of the Route 72 Conference should have a rather accurate idea of how it feels to be in the American League in baseball. For the Forreston High Cardinals, in a Yankee-like dominance, have pulled three full game ahead of the pack with the 14-game schedule only at its halfway point.

Mounders Upset, 76-74; Oregon, Lanark Triumph

MT. CARROLL—(Special)—One of the area's top upsets was recorded here Friday night, as the Mt. Carroll Hawks scored an overtime 76-74 triumph over the Mt. Morris Mounders in a rugged battle for second place in the Blackhawk conference.

In other Blackhawk tussles, Oregon's league leaders stretched their perfect record to 4-0 with an easy 81-48 win at home, and Lanark's Beavers edged Milledgeville on the loser's court, 51-47.

The Mounders, fresh from their stunning upset victory over The Fulton Steamers in the Fulton holiday tournament, couldn't cope with the sizzling 50 percent shooting average of Mount Carroll and dropped into third place behind Mount Carroll in the Blackhawk conference.

Bob Hanke, playing at the guard spot for the Mounders, led all scorers for the evening, tallying 26 points while Miles was collecting 22 for the victors.

The victory now makes Mount Carroll 3-1 in conference play and Mount Morris 2-2.

Polo, winless in three previous starts never overcame a first quarter deficit of 12 points compiled by the sharpshooting league leaders of Oregon.

Dick Haas paved the way for Oregon, hitting on 12 field goals and two charity tosses to lead all scorers for the evening with 26. Jerry Wolf garnered 16 for the Marcos.

The Oregon frosh-soph remained undefeated for the season in posting a 63-37 victory over the Polo underclassmen. Scoring for the two area games:

MOUNT CARROLL (76): Smith 20; Kneale 16; Remrey 2; Larson 16; Miles 22; and McDermann 6.

MOUNT MORRIS (74): Bartow 4; Zickuhr 8; Messer 16; Highbarger 8; Hoffman 12; and Hanke 26.

OREGON (81): Haas 26; Knutson 4; Montalbano 12; Giotfelty 17; Sassman 4; Eshbaugh 12; Ebens 0; Hay 4; Fletcher 0, and McMillion 2.

POLO (48): McGuire 10; Bowen 8; Wolf 16; Wilson 6; Busser 6; and Sweet 2.

Tony Over Pancho

EVANSTON, Ill. (P)—Tony Trabert picked up ground on Pancho Gonzales Friday night in their professional tennis barnstorming tour.

Trabert beat Gonzales, 6-1, 6-4, for his fourth triumph of the series. Gonzales has won eight games.

Pancho Segura defeated Rex Hartwig, 6-4, to lead in their series 10-0. In doubles play, Trabert and Hartwig beat the two Panchos, 10-8, 8-10, 6-3, to stretch their doubles lead to 9-3.

The series will continue tonight at McGraw Memorial Fieldhouse.

Lause Has to Come Back To Salvage Draw in Bout

NEW YORK (P)—Eduardo Lause the darling of Argentina, knows today why they call Milo Savage a "cutie." The handsome South American had to get off the floor and close with a rush to get a draw in Friday night's 10-round nationally-televized battle at Madison Square Garden.

In case you have forgotten, Savage is the veteran from Salt Lake City who pulled the old "shoe-string trick" on Holly Mims at St. Nicholas Arena last year. Yelling at Mims "look out, your shoe-string's untied," he belted the gentleman on the whiskers when he dropped his glance.

Limited English

Savage said in his dressing room Friday night he would have tried the "shoe-string trick" on Lause, too, but he found out that Eduardo's English is limited to a few phrases. "When we got in close, I told him 'punch, punch,'" said Savage. "Then I said 'harder, harder.'" But then I realized he couldn't understand.

Lause's winning streak of 31 fights wasn't broken although it was slightly bent.

Close Voting

The voting was close. Judge Frank Forbes' score saw Lause on top 63-61 and referee Felix had it for Savage 54-41. The AP card was 5-5.

In Little Eight—

Bulldogs Miss Chance to Upend Leaders, 51 to 47

OHIO—(Special)—Ohio's scrappy Bulldogs rose to their greatest heights of the season here Friday night but failed by a 51-47 score to pull the season's top upset in the Little Eight against a highly regarded Manlius High quintet.

The Ohio Frosh-Soph team also lost, bowing to their Manlius counterparts by a count of 27-25.

Close Contest

It was a battle royal all the way. Ohio forged to a 14-11 lead at the end of the first quarter, but the arrival of the halftime intermission found Manlius' Red Devils in front by 24-22.

But the Bulldogs continued to battle back, and at the end of another quarter of close action were behind only one point, 40 to 39. Ohio was still in the game with a little more than two minutes remaining, trailing only 45-44.

But who free throws by Salzman and a clutch basket by Hewitt made it 49-44 and Manlius stalled out the clock to retain their top spot in the conference.

Hewitt Gets 23

Manlius' classy guard Chuck Hewitt was the game's leading scorer with 23 points. Topping the Ohio scoring column was center Dick Anderson, who hit for 16.

The Manlius cagers thus retained their league lead, with a 4-0 record in the circuit, compared to Ohio's 2-2. Ohio is 6-6 for the season. The scoring:

MANLIUS (51): Salzman 5; D. Anderson 6; Berry 15; Kinsley 2; Hewitt 23.
OHIO (47): Gugerty 14; Sheridan 3; R. Anderson 15; Etheridge 12; Townsend 2.

LOST KNOWLEDGE

Proof of the earth's roundness was recognized among the ancient Greeks, especially from observations of eclipses of the moon, but the knowledge later was lost to mankind for centuries.

LITTLE LIZ

Most of us have never been sculptured, but practically all of us have been chiseled.

MILADY BOUND—These month-old minks don't know it, but they haven't too long to live. By the time they are seven months old, they will be turned into pelts for mink coats. They're being raised at a mink farm near Ononowoc, Wis.

Anyone Find Missing House?

ALBUQUERQUE (AP)—It's buff-colored and faced with imitation brick and if anyone knows where it is, D. M. Robinette would appreciate it if they would tell him. The first time the three-bedroom house disappeared it was sort of funny, but this is absurd, he says. Robinette said the 20 x 24 foot building disappeared from the hills on the east side of the Rio Grande and reappeared later on the west side of the Rio Grande. It was still there last Monday, Robinette told the sheriff's office, but it sure wasn't there Friday. He said the blocks the building was resting on are gone, too.

Story Time

NOWATA, Okla. (AP)—Robert Bruce Hill, 42, was bound over for District Court trial Friday on a charge of drunk driving. Hill explained in court his wrecked car had pinned him to the ground and a helpful stranger came by and "poured whiskey down my throat" to alleviate the suffering.

Town Will Vote On Its Name

TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES, N.M. (AP)—Mayor T. B. Williams says residents will get a chance Jan. 16 to express their opinions on this town's five-year-old name. They can vote then either to keep all six syllables or to revert to the old name of Hot Springs. The town was named after the radio show in 1950.

Rita Hayworth May End Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Settlement of the $150,000 contract suit between actress Rita Hayworth and her studio appears near.

Sources at Columbia Pictures said there was nothing official about a report Friday that a settlement already had been made, but indicated such a move is in the works.

Miss Hayworth sued for $150,000 claiming her contract was breached when a picture did not start on a certain date. Columbia filed a counter suit.

Do Alikes

ALTON, Ill. (AP)—St. Joseph's Hospital at Alton reports that Mrs. William E. Laughlin of Alton and Mrs. Thomas B. Stolze of Edwardsville had two things in common.

They shared the same hospital room when they gave birth to babies Dec. 31. And for each of them it was their second baby of 1955.

Truck Driver Admits Slaying His Landlord

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP)—A ban-lamweight truck driver admitted Friday he had killed his landlord out of jealousy over a red haired tavern waitress and tried to fake evidence of robbery to throw police off his trail.

State Police Detective Capt. R. F. Dillon said Warren R. Hyde, 38, admitted fatally beating Lyman Hire, 59, with a rifle New Year's Day.

Hire's body, his wrists bound with wire, was found Thursday beneath a bridge in icy Eel River 15 miles west of here.

Hyde, who weighs 127 pounds, was quoted by Dillon as saying he waited in Hire's darkened kitchen until the former garage owner and mechanic came home New Year's night and then struck the victim with Hire's own rifle as he entered the room. Hyde, who lived in an upstairs apartment in Hire's home, told police he continued to strike Hire until the rifle butt cracked.

Dillon quoted Hyde as saying he then ransacked Hire's apartment and took a collection of silver dollars, government bonds; and other articles to make it appear robbery had been the motive. He said he then drove Hire's auto to Chicago and left it to confuse police and threw the rifle into a field about 15 miles west of here.

Hyde told Dillon the body was left in the Hire kitchen until Wednesday, three days after the killing. Hyde told Dillon he then placed the body in his own car and hauled it to the river.

The state police detective said the woman involved in Mrs. Evelyn Dickerson, 37, of Fort Wayne, an attractive waitress. Dillon said Hyde told him that Mrs. Dickerson had been "keeping house" for him, but moved downstairs about five weeks ago.

Dillon said Mrs. Dickerson had started divorce proceedings against a husband now living outside the state.

Choking Fog Leaves London

LONDON (AP)—A choking fog which shrouded much of Britain for the past three days lifted early today.

By dawn "only a few patches" of fog remained and rail, air and road traffic was mostly back to normal, officials reported.

Almost 81 per cent of all vacation trips in the United States are by automobile.

They'll Do It Every Time

At the alumni meeting, the coach sort of took the bows for the team's winning streak.

The team lost the big one last time out—listen to coachie now.

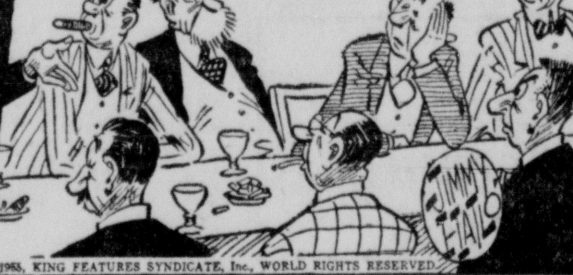

By Jimmy Hatlo

I am just the molder—the boys are the clay—I'm mighty happy the way they took to my type of coaching—while I demanded a lot, I think you'll agree I got results.

Our kids are green—they got too big for their britches—they beat themselves—they weren't playing a team game—they forgot everything they learned all season.

One-Minute Reviews Describe New Books at Dixon Library

How to Decorate and Light Your Home, by E. W. Comery and C. Eugene Stephenson. A new approach to home decorating, through the general topic of lighting.

A Pictorial History of the Silent Screen, by Daniel C. Blum. An amazing amount of illustrated facts concerning the early movies.

The Secret of the Hittites, by C. W. Ceram. An exciting new book by the author of that other exciting book about archeology, "Gods, Graves and Scholars." This one tells of the discovery of the ancient empire of the Hittites.

The Grand Mademoiselle, by Francis Steegmuller. As readable and as amusing as a novel is this biography of Anne Marie Louise d'Orleans, daughter of the brother of Louis XIII, and a cousin of Louis XIV. She and her times are well re-created, and she always did the unexpected, even at her funeral.

We Die Alone, by David Howarth. Tense, thrilling account of the Norwegian saboteurs who landed on their native soil with orders to destroy the German airfield near the Arctic Ocean, during World War II.

The Altmarrk Affair, by Willi Frischauer and Robert Jackson. The true account of the German ship which supplied the mighty Graf Spee of World War II.

Fiction
The October Country, by Ray Bradbury and Tunnel in the Sky, by Robert Heinlein. Two new science fiction yarns by the two masters of the field.

The Valiant, by Sigman Byrd and John Sutherland. A story of the fierce and valiant struggle of the Nez Perce Indians to hold their land against the U. S. Northwest migration.

Tender Victory, by Taylor Caldwell. Vigorous and angry this novel tells the story of a dedicated young minister's trials and frustrations in a dirty, cruel mining community.

Jeopardy, by Mandred Conte. A French tale of counterfeiting by a fine artist and the chase by a U.S. Treasury agent.

The First Train to Babylon, by

Max Ehrlich. A fine mixture of mystery and suspense.

The Case of the Terrified Typist, by Erle Stanley Gardner. Do Gardner's mysteries need introduction?

The Saintmaker's Christmas Eve, by Paul Horgan. A lovely new Christmas story (received too late) set in New Mexico, written by the author of "One Red Rose for Christmas."

The Proud Man, by Elizabeth Linington. Another superior historical novel. This one brings alive Shane O'Neill of Ulster, a contemporary of Elizabeth I of England and Mary, Queen of Scots, and the battles he waged against them and their power.

A Piece of Luck, by Frances Patton. A collection of short stories by the author of "Miss Dove."

Boon Island, by Kenneth Lewis Roberts. A new novel by the author of "Northwest Passage" and other fine historicals. This tells the story of the shipwreck, in 1710, of the Nottingham Galley on Boon Island, rocky ledge off the coast of Maine.

The Token, by Samuel Shellabarger. A story of medieval France and the savior girl given by Lord Stephen to his daughter, Lady Blanche of Rouche-Bernard, on her wedding day.

The Summer Intrigue, by Frank Swinnerton. A story of a disease—ambition—which spread through a family and the English community where they lived.

Three Volunteers

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP)—When word was passed at Pueblo County Jail that the sheriff wanted to see "the Gallegos who want to plead guilty," Joe, Sa mand Louis Gallegos — no relatives — stepped forward.

All pleaded guilty to separate charges of theft. Probation investigations were ordered for all three.

Driver Killed By Drag Racer

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Officers said Billy Joe Venable, 20, of near-by Colleyville was killed Friday night when his car was rammed by a motorist racing to win a $20 bet.

Officers, who learned of the bet from Grapevine residents, said the two drag racers were "burning up" Highway 121 between Grapevine and Fort Worth as they started through Colleyville. One of the speeding cars smashed into Venable's car.

Both speeders are being sought. The car which hit Venable was abandoned at the scene and the driver apparently left with the rival racer.

Duchess Slips Into Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore girl who became the Duchess of Windsor returned to her home city Friday night.

The duchess — formerly Miss Wallis Warfield of 225 E. Biddle St.—and the former king of England arrived in the city virtually unnoticed, in sharp contrast to a previous visit. Then, in October, 1941, crowds jammed the Pennsylvania Railroad Station and showers of paper and ticker tape were thrown.

The duke and duchess said they came to see friends.

First road to be built by the U.S. federal government was the old national pike.
